SUDDEN WEDDING

Hartford, Conn., May 5.—The public discussed the bill, led by Representative bill loomed up big in the louse of representatives today. The efforts of its opponents to give it a parliamentary quietus were frustrated for the day by the stubborn defense of Representative Chandler of Rocky Hill and its advocates who resorted to Hill and its advocates, who resorted to fillbustering owing to knowledge of the fact that the house was about ovenly divided with possible advantage in numbers on the side of those who wanted to get reconsideration of the motion by which resterday it was voted to send the bill to a special committee of nine members for redraft-

Representative Burnes Let Opportunity Slip By.

Representative Burnes, with the stronger position, let the opportunity go by, in the opinion of many, of foreing a vote early on the motion of Representative Hayes of Waterbury to reconsider yesterday's action. Mr. Navas had voted to reject the bill and forcing a vote early on the motion of Representative Hayes of Waterbury to reconsider yesterday's action. Mr. Nayes had voted to reject the bill and then voted in the affirmative on the question of reference to a special committee of the house. He was therefore in order to move reconsideration, but after doing so he withdrew the motion to permit of the taking up of routine business which had accumulated in considerable volume the past few days.

Great Scurrying To and Fro.

Later Mr. Haves pressed his motion, but in the meantime there had been great scurrying around the chamber of members who are for and sgainst the bill and also of county commissioners who attend the sessions regularly, of officeholders who are always on hand during the sittings of the house, and of men who are understood to repre-sent corporations and other interests. Upstairs in the capitol a conference of many of the last mentioned men was held and several times members of the house were in the corridors discussing the situation with men who seemed to be worried over the way things were going or not going.

Postponement Demanded.

A discussion was precipitated on the A discussion was precipitated on the motion of Mr. Hayes, in which Representative Burnes and others argued for its passage and Representatives Hall of Willington Representative Chandler of Rocky Hill, Representative Brinspiade of Washington and many others demanded a rejection of the motion or a matterial until temperow or later hecause some thirty members had gone with the agricultural committee to visit Storrs school. SUPPOSED LOST SHIP'S CREW ARE ALIVE IN PRISON. an Astounding Story.

Kingston, St. Vincent, B. W. L. May 5.—It may be that Capt. Collins Stephenson and the crew of the American whaling ship Carrie D. Knowles, long since thought to have been lost at sea, are still alive in a Venezueian prison. An American seaman, who gives the name of Payne, an escaped prisoner from Venezueia, has made his way to Kinsston where he laid before the authorities an astounding story of the seizure of the Carrie D. Knowles at Venezuelan port, where she arrived five years ago in distress, and the in-carceration by the Venezuelans of the captain and his men.

Provincetown, Mass., May 5.—The despatch from Kingston outlining the story told by an escaped Venezuelan prisoner to the effect that the crew of the last Province. prisoner to the effect that the crew of the lost Provincetown whaler Carrie D. Knowles were incarcerated is a prison in Venezuela was naturally of intense interest here. As the entire crew of the Knowles were natives of the West Indies, there are little meaushere of verifying Payne's statements. The identity of Payne is not clear, but it may be that he is no other than Elisha Payne, a seaman of Provincetown, who mysteriously disappeared from this port previous to or about the time of the sailing of the Knowles. So far as known here, Payne was not So far as known here, Payne was not a member of the crew when she suited
